BIDS SUBMITTED TO CITY COUNCIL

At the regular meeting of the City Council last Monday night, Mayor H. H. Smith presiding, several bids were received for alterations to the City Hall and for the building of a new storage pump-house on Templeton avenue. Final consideration of the bids was postponed until Monday evening, July 29.

A communication was received from the Fidelity & Deposit Co., asking permission to cancel their bond covering the blasting permit of A. Milo, affecting lots 4 and 5, block 1, Crocker Tract, Daly City. Upon the advice of the city attorney, such permission was granted.

The Railroad Commission asked for suggestions from the City Council in regard to the proposed standards governing the installation of equipment on electric consumers' premises. This matter was referred to the water and light committee.

Permission was asked by the Northern Petroleum Company to erect a small oil refining plant on property leased by them, and located on the Junipero Serra boulevard, adjoining the T. L. Butler's gravel bunkers. For an investigation and report, this matter was referred to the chief of the fire department.

A communication was received from the California League of Municipalities, explaining an act of the legislature, which will be in effect on August 14, imposing liability upon all cities for injuries to persons or damage to property caused by the negligence of a city officer or employee in operating a motor vehicle. This is a new risk, and the League of Municipalities, acting in co-operation with the state, is seeking data on which insurance premiums may be based. The city clerk was instructed to comply with the request.

The new fire department ordinance was acted upon and passed.

The street committee reported that the cutting of weeds was progressing very rapidly and that the work would soon be completed.

A letter was recevied from Mrs. C. E. Lorentzen, 674 Templeton avenue, thanking the City Council for their prompt attention to and the repairing and painting of the arches on Alexander avenue.

The monthly bills were read and ordered paid.

ST. ANNE'S CHURCH SCENE OF BEAUTIFUL WEDDING

A beautiful wedding ceremony took place in St. Anne's church last Saturday afternoon, when Mr. John Edward Johnstone, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. David Johnstone, of 6238 Mission stret, and Miss Josephine Mariea McDonald, only daughter of Mrs. H. Elmers, of 1376 Twentieth avenue, were united in marriage.

The bride was beautifully gowned in a dress of soft grey georgette, with a large picture hat of the same color. She carried a bouquet of Cecil Bruner roses with Marchionette orchids and lilies of the valley.

The bride and groom, accompanied by the maid of honor, the bridesmaid and the best man, arrived at the church in a Pierce Arrow sedan, and were immediately followed by the parents of the bride and groom in the same make of car.

After the wedding ceremony a banquet was held at the beautiful home of the parents of the bride, on Twentieth avenue. Caterers furnished a delightful spread for more than fifty guests. The house was beautifully decorated for the occasion and a three piece orchestra furnished music for the happy guests.

After a two weeks' tour of the northern part of the state and Canada the young couple will return to their beautiful home in the Marina.

Among the guests present were Mrs. H. Elmers, Mrs. David Johnstone, Mrs. Joseph Bacigalupi, Mrs. Clifford Pettigrew, Mrs. Mary Gillies, Mrs. Robert Pelletier, Rosella Green, Bernice Gillies; Messrs. WEEK END OUTING ENDS IN TRAGEDY

Tragedy ended a happy week end picnic at San Mateo Memorial Park, near Pescadero, last Sunday, when two San Francisco boys were drowned, while playing on a raft in Pescadero creek.

Mr. and Mrs. Myron Alexander and children, Myron, Jr., and Lois, of 1167 Hanover street, Daly City, motored to Memorial Park last Saturday with a group of friends from San Francisco, including Mrs. Mary Curran and children, James and Marguerite, her daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Newnham, and Alwin Allen, who made his home with the Curran family, to camp for the week end.

On Sunday afternoon, during the absence of the men folks, Mrs. Alexander and Mrs. Curran, with the group of young folks, picnicked on a a little beach alongside the creek.

The Allen boy boarded a floating raft and pushed himself out into the stream. Unable to swim, and not thinking the water deep, he tried to get off the raft. James Curran immediately started to the assistance of the boy, reaching out his hand to him, but was unable to get near enough, and Allen sank into a deep hole in the creek.

Young Curran, although knowing he was a poor swimmer, nevertheless went boldly to the rescue, only to be engulfed himself a moment later.

Mrs. Curran and Mrs. Alexander, seated at the water's edge, witnessed the sudden tragedy, and ran screaming for help.

Their screams were heard in the nearby Boy Scout camp and brought Assistant Scoutmaster Clyde De Vine, aged 18, of 1200 Lincoln avenue, Burlingame, and a group of Scouts, to the scene. De Vine dived for half an hour before he recovered the bodies of the unfortunate boys.

Dr. C. V. Thompson, of Pescadero, chairman of the San Mateo county board of supervisors, and a pulmotor squad were summoned, but the two boys were past human aid.

The Allen boy, 10 years of age, was an orphan and a ward of the Junior League. He spent last week at the Alexander home on Hanover street, where he had a delightful time, and had looked forward all week to the week end trip, being greatly enthused over it.

Young Curran, who was 19 years of age, was on his vacation from St. Joseph's College at Mountain View, where he was studying for the priesthood.

THREE MEN STABBED DURING RIOT AT MILL

A race feud, long smouldering, according to officials, flamed into riot last Wednesday at South San Francisco. The rioting occurred at the gates of the Pacific Coast Steel Company mill.

As a result of the fracas, in which knives flashed and fists and clubs were used, three men went to the hospital and two were arrested.

The injured men are John Hanlon, aged 20, and John Butler, aged 24, of South San Francisco, and E. A. Navarro, of San Francisco. They are all suffering from stab wounds, but were not seriously hurt. Navarro and Alfredo Ocampo are being held without bail on charges of assault with deadly weapons.

COWBOY DANCE TO OPEN HALF MOON BAY RODEO

MERCHANTS ARE AGAIN VICTORS

The Daly City Merchants' baseball team defeated the Borreani Sheet Metal team of San Francsco, last Sunday, at the Jefferson Union high school grounds, the score being 7 to 3. Getting off to a start of three runs in the first inning, the Merchants had easy going from then on. A hit by Retig, a walk to Drucker, a double by Maloney and a triple by Jimmy Keane drove Pitcher Rollins from the box, he being replaced by McCue, who kept the score down pretty well, although he was touched up for eight hits in five innings. J. Keane turned his ankle in the third inning and had to leave the game.

Dick Randall, Marchant pitcher, turned in his usual steady game, striking out ten batters. Maloney made two beautiful running catches. F. Strand, catcher for the Merchants, is sure holding the opposing runners to the bags these days. The box score follows:

LOCAL PASTOR HAS AN AMUSING EXPERIENCE

An amusing incident occurred in the life of Rev. John R. Stevenson the other day in a down town restaurant. He noticed a gentleman seated opposite at lunch who seemed familiar. Where he had met him he could not remember, and yet the face of the gentleman seemed as familiar as that of a brother. Yes, he knew him quite well. But where had they met.

Leaving the restaurant at about the same time, the Reverend could stand it no longer, and walking beside the strange gentleman he pulled his sleeve and said: "Tell me who you are? I seem to know you, but who you are and where we have met I simply can not remember."

The gentleman looked down from his towering height of almost seven feet and said, smilingly: "I am the Secretary of the United States Navy, Wilbur."

"Oh," said the Reverend, "I was sure I knew you, and of course now I do."

Mr. Wilbur enjoyed the joke like a gentleman, and both had a good laugh over the incident.

The Jefferson All Stars lost a long drawn out contest last Sunday, when the Merry Bachelors scored ten runs in the eighth inning to give them a 17 to 13 margin. Glen Park was the battle grounds.

This was the third setback received by the All Stars, and every defeat was administered on a strange diamond.

The Bachelors were outhit, 13 to 11, but they were issued 18 walks. Nine of these came in the eventful eighth frame.

M. Plansky led the batting attack for the Jeffersonians by collecting four hits out of five trips to the plate. Herbert, left fielder, garnered three hits to lead the bachelors.

THE SKIPPER COMES ASHORE

By James D. McCLURE.
Released by National Automoble Club.

CHAPTER I—PART 13

Well folks, I'm backing water a few years to the time I shipped as able-bodied seaman aboard the "Eldorado," bound for Cape Town, up the eastern coast of Africa, to Mozambique, across to Rangoon, and then 'round the Malay Peninsula to Singapore. Captain Gilhauser was our skipper—a "deep sea" man from keel to skysail, hard of manner and soft of heart. His son was along that trip; a curly headed tike, chock-a-block with his Dad's spirit, and as full of the Old Nick as sampan is of fleas. I well remember the day he tripped Chips—the ship's carpenter—into a hogshead of bilge water, all green and slimy. The Old Man keelhauled him with a rope's end till his timbers shivered, and then turned him loose to swab the fo'c'sle deck with soft-soap and a hand brush. Couldn't help liking the lad, and I was a bit sorry to say goodbye when I took my pay at Singapore and signed on the "Sister Maggie," east-bound to 'Frisco by way of Shanghai, Nagasaki and Yokohoma.

Twenty-two years passed and then, just the other day, I heard the old war-cry, "Way for a Sailor." Someone slapped me astern, my pipe fell between my teeth, and broaching to, I came fact to face with old Skipper Gilhauser's son. Time had lengthened his keel and broadened his beam, but there he stood, the grown up image of the tike I first taught to splice a rope and tie a running bowline. He had left the sea for a billet ashore and was now piloting a Boeing Air Mail Plane between Oakland and Medford, It took that young fellow just two minutes to convince me that-in spite of my being an old gray haired codger—I was still sailor enough to get both feet off the deck and go aloft.

I docked my craft in the nearest garage, drove with him to Medford, and then flew with the Air Mail to Oakland. Folks, if you'll just stand by me for a few minutes I'd surely like to spin a yarn about that trip—my first trip in the air.

Well sir, fifty years at sea can give a man many thrills, but I'm telling you here, never in my life have I experienced or enjoyed an adventure equal to those seven hours aboard the Mail Plane. I was out on the field in the morning in time to see our ship come in from the north. At first she appeared as a speck in the distance, growing larger and larger as she speeded towards us; dropping swiftly to earth and landing with no perceptible shock; then rolling gracefully to a stop before the hangar.

The few moments necessary for loading mail and refueling the plane enabled me to look her over. She was a likely craft, rated on her United States government license as a Boering land-biplane, powered with a Wasp-400 Whirlwind-type motor. With ar over-all length of thirty three feet, and a wing spread of forty four feet; with a seating capcity for four passengers and a pilot; with ample space for mail and baggage; and with tankage for two hundred and fifty gallons of gas, she weighed but a trifle over thirty-five hundred pounds; about the weight of an average sized closed-type automobile. In spite of her lightness, she was as sturdily built as an old square-rigger launched to buck the surging waters of the Horn. Her taut wing coverings could shed the elements like a duck's feathers, while her underpinnings were planned for dropping anchor in three feet of sage brush, in ploughed land, sand, or shallow water, in fact any place except dead-head against a solid obstacle.

Just aft of the motor was space for mail and express; then starting in line with the forward tip of the wings, came the passenger compartment. Further astern, just forward of the rudder, was the pilot's cockpit It was here Gilhauser took his place, while I reefed my stature to fit through a "two by two" door and settled into a softly upholstered bucket seat.

Just got comfortable when the motor speeded up and we taxied to the northern end of the field, coming about and heading into the wind. The brakes were set; the drone of the motor increased to a roar; the plane quivered as it was held in leash against the traction of the propeller; my heart increased its palpitations; then the brakes were released and we shot suddenly forward, the ground flying by at great speed as we gained headway for the take-off.

DEFY FLAMES TO KEEP SWITCHBOARD RUNNING

Two telephone girls are today the heroines of the home town of Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh, Little Falls, Minn., as a result of the most disastrous fire in the history of the town. The two girls are Miss Alexia Theis, twenty years of age, and Miss Agnes Miller, nineteen years old. They were employed as operators at the local telephone switchboard, which was located on the second floor of the historic Kiewel Block, one of Little Falls' principal buildings.

Fire broke out in the basement of the building and soon the entire first floor was ablaze. As the fire continued to spread rapidly the blaze had burned away all the wires and the exchange was so filled with smoke that it was difficult either to see or to breathe, and escape was only possible by means of ladders, with the aid of firemen.

Many of the faculty of Northwestern University, as well as several prominent citizens of Evanston, Ill., were indignant when summoned to the police station to answer to charges of "traffic violations." It was discovered that students had found a lot of summons blanks lost by a policeman and had filled them out and sent them to the professors and others as a joke.

Some women are more careful with their money than they are with their affections.

S. F. BOARD BACKS WESTERN PACIFIC

Last Monday the San Francisco board of supervisors passed a resolution backing the Western Pacific Railroad's application for a new road into California.

The Western Pacific and the Great Northern railroad have pending before the Interstate Commerce Commission an application to connect their systems by the construction of a 200-mile line from Keddey, California, to Klamath Falls, Oregon.

The measure passed by the supervisors authorizes the city attorney to intervene in the case in behalf of the Western Pacific and the Great Northern.

The vote was preceded by a brief discussion of the plans of the new railroad by Judge Warren Olney, representing the Western Pacific, who declared that the connection of the two systems would encourage competition and would result in the development throughout the northwest of a market for California products.

INTOXICATION CAUSES MOST AUTO SMASHES

It's the drunken driver, experienced but irresponsible, rather than the novice at the wheel who creates the traffic hazard.

Licensed at the rate of 27,000 monthly, numbering 137,740 in the past five months alone, the wheel-clutching, hard-staring novitiate with the nervous throttle foot is safe by comparison with the drug-crazed, alcohol-soaked individual who considers his judgment better than that of any other, according to George F. Moynahan, motor vehicle division chief of inspectors.

"It's not the green driver but the fellow of long experience who thinks he can drive who causes the accidents," explained Moynahan.

Of 140,000 persons applying for licenses and given personal examinations under the law requiring tests as to mental and physical fitness to drive as well as knowledge of the motor vehicle act, but 4660 were rejected, the chief inspector announced. Of 1,021 persons whose licenses were revoked by the courts or the division for various causes, drunken drivers headed the list.

"If there is a saturation point for drivers and cars, California has not reached it," said Moynahan. "On the whole the beginning California driver exhibits more discretion and certainly a greater sense of caution than most operators of long experience. "

What Will you do When your Children Cry for It

There is hardly a household that hasn't heard of Castoria! At least five million homes are never without it. If there are children in your family, there's almost daily need of its comfort. And any night may find you very thankful there's a bottle in the house. Just a few drops, and that colic or constipation is relieved; or diarrhea checked. A vegetable product; a baby remedy meant for young folks. Castoria is about the only thing you have ever heard doctors advise giving to infants. Stronger medicines are dangerous to a tiny baby, however harmless they may be to grown-ups. Good old Castoria! Remember the name, and remember to buy it. It may spare you a sleepless, anxious night. It is always ready always safe to use; in emergencies, or for everyday ailments. Any hour of the day or night that Baby becomes fretful, or restless. Castoria was never more popular with mothers than it is today. Every druggist has it.

CALIFORNIA NEWS BRIEFS

Placer county will expend $2,000 on an exhibit at the state fair next September, according to a resolution passed by the board of supervisors.

The reopening of the Snowbird Mine, above Foresthill, has started under the direction of Martin Costello. Timbers are being cut and unwatering will start at an early date. This property is reported to have a good showing of gold.

Construction work on a new $10,000 firehouse at Pleasanton will start immediately it was announced by C. A. Bruce & Sons, local contractors. A recent bond issue provided funds for the building. The old firehouse will be razed and the new one built in its place.

Owing to the fact that all assessment work on mining claims had to start before June 30, it has been a busy time at the recorder's office at Sonora with filing of proofs of labor. Ninety-eight documents had been filed by July 1, and twenty-six were filed during the first three days of July.

Fire recently destroyed the Recreation Park pavilion adjoining the athletic field of the Placer Union High School in Auburn. The pavilion was formerly used as a site for fairs and expositions and was once the gymnasium of the Placer Union High School. It also had been used as a skating rink.

The "Placerville bottleneck" on the Lincoln Highway will be widened for next year's summer travel. This is the prospect following dismissal of the city's condemnation suit against J. A. Sigwart, which accompanied Sigwart's agreement to "come to terms" set down by property with which to widen the street.

The water shortage has become so acute in Lovelock that the city council has notified citizens no water may be used for gardens or trees. Only sufficient water is available for home purposes. The Humboldt river is so low at Lovelock that no water can be obtained from the stream, and the city is rushing work on two new wells in hopes of increasing the municipal water supply.

Efforts will be made to secure funds for the erection of a hall of records at Martinez. It is planned to include a tax levy for the work rather than to bond for the necessary funds. The levy will be apportioned over a number of years. The county already owns the site for the proposed building, which consists of a city block directly across the street and south of the present courthouse.

Recommendations of Hunters Valley, Mariposa county, as a site for the proposed federal narcotic addicts' farm was laid before Governor Young's commission co-operating with federal authorities. The commission, consisting of O. T. Johnson, Jr., of Los Angeles, State Narcotic Chief F. H. Benson and Senator Sanborn Young of Los Gatos, is considering the resolution of the Mariposa Chamber of Commerce asking that Hunters Valley be considered before a site is selected.

Stockton will be a radio fan's paradise if an ordinance presented to the city council by the Music and Radio Trades Association is adopted. The proposed ordinance would make it unlawful for any person to use electrical devices within the city which would interfere with radio broadcast or reception. Heating pads, oil burners, vacuum cleaners, flashers, motors and simila devices would come under the ban. Violations would be punishable by six months in jail, $500 fine or both.

Leaders have expressed dissatisfaction over the utility's request that the City of Richmond pay $20,000 to lay the proposed 12 inch water main to the inner harbor, the money to be refunded over a period of 10 years in accordance with the amount of water used. It was explained by Henry A. Johnston, Richmond's representative on the utility board, that if the city does not pay the assessment must be applied on the tax rate. Objectors declared they feared that the utility plan would mean that there would be no refund because the city would not have used up the equivalent value in water to offset the $20,000 payment in the 10 year period.

Negotiations for the purchase by the Roseville School Board of the block facing the Atlantic Street Grammar School have been completed. The newly acquired property will be cleared of the homes, and for the present will be use as a playground. The school board has definitely decided to call a bond election to submit an $80,000 proposal for a ten-room school to replace the present Main Street building, and for the addition of ten rooms to the Vernon Street school building to replace the Oak Street school. The date of the election has not been definitely decided, but probably will be in the Fall, when many of the local residents, who are now away for the Summer, have returned to their homes.

Voting three to one, with one member of the board absent, the directors of the Modesto Irrigation District ratified the contract whereby the San Joaquin Light and Power Corporation agrees to supply the district with electricity needed to supplement that generated at Don Pedro Dam. The action of the board followed receipt of a telephoned message that the Turlock Irrigation District directors had signed an agreement whereby power purchased by the Modesto district will be carried over the Turlock Irrigation District lines.

HIGH DEGREE OF SAFETY ACHIEVED IN AVIATION

Army Flyers Now Average 17½ Years in Air for Each Fatal Crash, Survey Shows.

New York.—How safe is airplane travel today?

The first comprehensive answer to this question, which is concerning more and more Americans each year is provided by Herbert Brucker, writer and aviation enthusiast, in a survey of current aerial activities in America which is published in The Review of Reviews.

By computing the number of miles flown within the latest recorded period and the number of fatal accidents in four classes of flying—army, navy, air mail and civilian flying clubs—Mr. Brucker finds flying has achieved an incredibly high degree of safety.

The average naval aviator today can fly for 19 years before meeting a fatal accident, he calculates. The army flyer can record 17½ years without a fatal crash; the air mail service recorded but one death in 2,583,006 miles flown in 1928, which would mean but one death in 129 years of flying; the civilian club flyer, including the dangerous period of student flying, had an average record indicating 13⅓ years aloft without a fatal accident.

All of these classes of flyers face dangers not encountered by the occasional air passenger, Mr. Brucker points out.

"Among naval flyers there were 13,728,000 miles flown and 28 killed," he shows. The record last year was 392,000 miles flown for each death. On the basis of the difficult flying done last year by naval aviators, that would mean that a man could fly 19 years, even if he were a frequent flyer, before he would be killed.

"This general conclusion is borne out by the army's experience. Army flying has almost tripled in seven years, and the number of fatalities has shrunk to one-third. Last year there was approximately a death to every 351,700 miles flown, indicating that an average man could fly on military tasks and in intricate maneuvers some 17½ years before having a fatal crash."

The air mail service for a single year shows but one death for 2,583,006 miles of flight, his Review of Reviews article shows. Estimating that the professional mail pilot covers 20,000 miles a year, he shows that this record means but one death in 129 years.

For civilian sport flying, Mr. Brucker takes the figures of the Canadian Light Airplane clubs, many of whose members were student flyers and, consequently, liable to more accidents. But at the end of a year the organization had recorded 812,400 miles flown with but three fatal crashes.

H. H. Fish, Esq., President of the Company, summarizes from his letter to us as follows:

BUSINESS

Western Newspaper Union, successor to a company of the same name and a business founded in 1865, serves more than 10,000 daily and weekly country newspapers, maintaining fully equipped plants in 36 key cities of the United States from California to Massachusetts.

The Company supplies these newspapers with ready printed inside pages or with columns of prepared plate, containing various feature stories, serials and special articles selected by the newspaper publishers; places national advertising in their papers and prepares cuts and copy for local advertising campaigns.

The Company also does a large volume of commercial printing, prints in their entirety various magazines and trade journals and is responsible for the mechanical production of many of the feature services of The Associated Press.

FINANCIAL

During the past 20 years net profits of Western Newspaper Union, after all charges including depreciation, but before Federal taxes, averaged more than $680,000 annually, and in no single year were such net profits less than $450,000.

Net profits after depreciation, but before Federal taxes, for the past 4 years, as certified by Messrs. Arthur Andersen & Co., after eliminating operations of the paper mill, which is being sold coincident with this financing and after other adjustments arising from the reorganization as stated in their certificate, were as follows:

1925	$741,336
1926	955,383
1927	571,249
1928	765,825

Such net profits as above have averaged about $758,448 annually, and for the year ended December 31, 1928, amounted to $765,825, equivalent to more than 3 times the annual Debenture interest requirement.

After deducting from such net profits in 1928 Debenture interest requirements, Federal Taxes (parent company) at 12% and Preferred Stock dividends, the balance amounted to over $352,000, or about $2.35 per share on the 150,000 shares of Common Stock to be presently outstanding.

The net assets of the Company, available for these Debentures, based on the balance sheet, as at April 30, 1929, adjusted to give effect to the present financing, including the sale of the paper mill, were in excess of $8,500,000.

MANAGEMENT

Since the death in 1916 of the former owner, George A. Joslyn, his widow and other heirs have owned the majority of the Common Stock of Western Newspaper Union, control of which is now being acquired by the executives who have been responsible for its successful operation during the past 13 years.

All legal details will be passed upon by Messrs. Tenney, Harding, Sherman & Rogers of Chicago and by Messrs. White & Case of New York.

EDISON'S MESSAGE

At the inauguration of Light's Golden Jubilee, celebrating the 50th anniversary of Thomas A. Edison's invention of the incandescent lamp, the great inventor sent this message to the National Electric Light Association:

"When I invented the incandescent lamp, I realized that the lamp alone was not enough. It was necessary also to perfect a system of electric generation and distribution. I immediately set about to develop it, and it makes me happy to know that the system as well as the lamp still persists in all its essentials.

"I had in those days a high opinion of my invention. All inventors have. But I must confess that I never dreamed that from it would come the stupendous electrical industry of today.

"Naturally I am gratified to feel that I have been privileged to play a part in this vast achievement. I am proud of the electrical industry—of its vision, courage, zeal and devotion to public service; and I suspect every American feels the same way about it.

"It is a great reward to me and the many colleagues and co-workers, who, I rejoice to say are still living, that we have survived to see the full fruit of our labors. The record is wonderful; but, fine as it is, it can be made still better, and I have a feeling that in your hands it will be."

OYSTERS IN MERGER

Even the lowly oyster has not escaped the present trend toward industrial mergers which has been going forward at a rapid rate during the past few months. It was recently announced that a large number of extensive oyster farms at Long Island, Connecticut and Rhode Island points have been acquired by Postum Company, Inc., which has consummated mergers whereby more than 20 nationally advertised food products will be manufactured and distributed.

These mergers, it is understood, do not attempt to control any particular commodity, but bring many food products of different kinds into one large organization, each commodity or brand having free competition in its own field.

This is a very different proposition from the "trusts" of old, which it was alleged sought to create a monopoly in a certain line of goods. The old system was in the direction of restraint of competition, while the present trend is to form consolidations with a view to economy of operation, which in the end should benefit the consumer.

FOURTH OF JULY DEATHS

Associated Press reports indicate that 159 persons met violent deaths on July 4 this year, being 46 less than on the national holiday a year ago. Only 7 fatalities were due to fireworks.

Drownings and automobile acciaccidents were responsible for the greatest number of deaths, the former showing a decrease and the latter an increase.

Of course, all these deaths can not be attributed to the fact that July 4 was a holiday, as there are a good many accidental deaths every day, but it seems inevitable that a large number of persons must lose their lives in the pursuit of holiday pleasure.

Automobiles took a toll of 70 lives, an increase of 16 over July 4 last year. In spite of all the warnings that may be given, the motoring public appears strangely indifferent to the frightful loss of life occurring from automobile accidents. Needless speeding and taking unnecessary chances are responsible for the most of the deaths and injuries which make up the daily list.

Unfortunately, the reckless often kill and maim careful persons who are unable to get out of their way. It is getting so that one who values his life had better stay at home on Sundays and holidays, especially. Otherwise he is at the mercy of a lot of irresponsible fools, who drive with utter disregard of themselves or others.

DO IT NOW

A black spot on the record of American progress and prosperity is fire waste. For two years, since the high mark of over half a billion dollars was reached in 1926, losses have declined, an indication that fire prevention work is bearing fruit. Yet we have the greatest per capita loss of any country in the world. The tragic part of the waste is that at least eighty per cent of all fires are preventable and inexcusable. We sacrifice thousands of lives and millions of dollars in property, merely because of carelessness or ignorance.

Fire prevention organizations, both public and private, have labored untiringly to instruct the people in the menace of fire and the means of prevention. It is a common occurrence for losses to greatly decrease during the annual "Fire Prevention Week," only to rise again when the period is past.

Fire is the most hopeless and terrible of all wastes. Property and lives destroyed can never be completely replaced. And the indirect loss, in time and business and employment, is inestimable.

Americans who pride themselves on their intelligence and education must further reduce the fire waste. They would do well to glance around their homes, offices and factories and eliminate hazards they are sure to find. Do it now, not after the fire.

AIDS SMALL DAIRYMEN

Dairymen with only small herds have long found the problem of cooling their milk at small expense a difficult one. The perfection of a new milk cooler device to meet the needs of these farmers has recently been announced, and should be a welcome addition to their equipment.

The new apparatus is described as being so simple that people will wonder why it wasn't thought of before. It consists primarily of a sturdy tank, partially filled with sweet water brine, in which a 10 gallon can is placed. A tinned copper coil is submerged in the milk and the brine is pumped through the coil with a fractional horsepower motor direct connected with a small circulating pump, which makes the operating cost comparatively little.

Milk fresh from the cow is brought down to a temperature of 35 degrees in eight minutes, thus one 10-gallon can may be cooled by the time the next one is ready during the milking period.

Engineers of the Servel laboratories in Evansville. Ind., where the refrigerating part of the device was perfected, are elated over its successful operation, and believe that it represents one of the most useful inventions lately produced for modernizing the farm.

BELIEVE IT OR NOT

Gourd vines are growing rapidly in the South this year, according to a recent press dispatch from Lochapoka, Ala., and as a result A. H. Nunn, a farmer of that community, had a turkey dinner considerably ahead of the usual season.

Nunn declares that one of his young turkeys went to roost on a gourd vine and that the vine's tendrils grew around the bird's neck during the night, so that when it tried to fly to the ground next morning it was held by the twining shoots and strangled to death.

Mr. Nunn is reputed to be a truthful man, and as the tale concerns his own turkey there appears to be no valid reason to doubt his veracity. Anyway, this is his story. Believe it or not.

The mother alligator's highest ambition for her son is that he may some day become a traveling bag.

We could stand superior people if they didn't insist on reminding us of their superiority.

WOMAN HEADS RAILROAD

Governor Gardner of North Carolina has long been a champion of woman's right to participate in public affairs, and recently appointed one to the presidency of the North Carolina railroad, running from Goldsboro to Charlotte.

Mrs. Thomas W. Bickett, widow of a former governor, is the new president of the road, of whose stock the state owns three fourths and consequently is in control. The road is leased to the Southern Railway for a term of 99 years, however, so that Mrs. Bickett will have little in the way of operating responsibilities to worry about.

In addition to her new position, Mrs. Bickett is superintendent of public welfare of Wake county, and has been director of the Atlantic & North Carolina railroad, also state controlled, for some time. While her salary as railroad president is only $100 a month, she will have passes over all the other lines in the country, but her many duties will probably not permit much use of them.

BIG POULTRY POOL

Canadian farmers have long been going in for co-operative marketing on a large scale, with apparently satisfactory results. Recently a combination of four provincial poultry marketing organizations has been formed, which will control a larger poultry output, perhaps, than has ever been brought under one management.

The Canadian Poultry Pool, Limited, will embrace the former co-operative marketing organization of Manitoba, Saskatchewan, Alberta and British Columbia, and will now handle and sell the poultry and egg production of all four provinces under one control.

It is expected to give further stabilization to poultry prices in the territory concerned, and its operation will be observed with interest by similar organizations elsewhere.

By industry and thrift the able bodied citizen may accumulate almost as much as the average street beggar.

MAY VISIT GRAVES OF WORLD WAR VICTIMS

Gold Star mothers and widows of the World war veterans buried in France may now learn of the details of the United States government's free pilgrimage for them to the American cemeteries in Europe and the battlefields of the World war, from officials of the American Legion, according to State Adjutant James K. Fisk of the California department of the veterans' organization.

"Every Gold Star mother of a service man buried overseas and every widow who has not remarried since the death of her husband, may make the long overseas journey untroubled by and difficulties," Adjutant Fisk states. The Secretary of War has made the arrangements for the tour and all expenses will be borne by the federal government, he says.

"All Posts of the American Legion and all units of the American Legion Auxiliary will do everything possible to inform mothers and widows of the pilgrimages. All posts and units have been requested to report the names of mothers and widows of their communities to Major General B. F. Cheatham, Quartermaster General, War Department, Washington, D. C. Full name of son or husband should be given, the branch in which he served, and the cemetery in which he is buried overseas.

"Congress has provided that the pilgrimages shall be made by small groups during the period of May 1, 1930, to October 31, 1933, and each group will be in Europe for a period of two weeks. Cabin class accommodations will be furnished on steamships for all those making the pilgrimage. The Secretary of War will prescribe regulations as to the time for each group pilgrimage, itineraries, the composition of groups, accommodations, transportation, program, managment and all other details.

"Stepmothers, mothers through adoption and any woman who held the place of a parent to a deceased member of the military or naval forces for a year before he entered service will be entitled to the privilege of the pilgrimage. Only widows who have not remarried since the deaths of their husbands are eligible to make the pilgrimage."

Damages of $15,000 are asked in a complaint filed in the Superior Court at Redwood City last Monday by Mrs. Mae Robinson, of San Francisco, against J. F. Roberts and George V. Houseman, as the result of an automobile accident at Lawndale last Saturday. Riding in an automobile driven by O. F. Ford, San Francisco, Mrs. Robinson suffered serious injuries when the car was struck by one driven by Roberts, says the complaint.

A reception honoring Congresswoman Florence Kahn, on her visit to San Mateo to inspect the Brewers island site for a proposed Pacific coast army air base, was held last Monday at the San Mateo city hall.

SIDELIGHTS

Many novel excuses have been offered by citizens who try to evade jury duty, but an Iowa man recently advanced one which is probably unique. He declared that inasmuch as his wife had been drawn on the jury he could not serve, because no agreement would be possible.

Getting the wrong number on the telephone was particularly unfortunate for George Reed of Pontiac, Mich. He was trying to call up a customer for bootleg whiskey and got an enforcement officer instead; also got arrested.

College graduates seeking "white collar" jobs at $25 or so a week may be interested in this: After a strike 5,000 St Louis iron workers returned to work at $13 a day with the promises of a raise to $14 a day next year.

This story is vouched for by F. L. Stoddard, a well-known New York artist: Seeing a sick cat keel over in the street and in imminent danger of being crushed by a truck, a big dog dashed to the rescue, took the cat in its teeth and carried it to the sidewalk and safety.

King George of England by a remark to one of his nurses recently revealed that he does not take himself too seriously. He said. "Betsy, a king is, after all, just a very ordinary kind of man, but one who has to live in a very extraordinary kind of way that sometimes seems to have so little sense to it."

Mrs. Susan Cook of Butler county, Pennsylvania, still takes a lively interest in what is going on, although she is 103. Asked her opinion of the modern flappers, she said: " Girls of 1846 had just as much fun as the girls of 1929."

Dr. Pickens of Cardiff strongly urges that as a health measure the practice of kissing should be discontinued by everybody. A lot of fellows have gotten into print by making the same suggestion, but that is about as far as they ever got.

Pal, a German police dog, owned by a Detroit aviator, is extraordinarily "air-minded." When anyone tries to keep him out of his master's cockpit, Pal shows fight. Once when he was left behind he refused to eat for two days.

Myrtle Lambert, a young New Jersey girl, has been disowned by her father because of her persistent habit of riding freight trains. He said: "I have knocked her cold several times, but I can't knock this foolishness out of her."

George Loeb had himself shipped by express from Chicago to California, taking one precaution which showed foresight. He had his shipping box made with tapering ends so that he could not be stood on his head en route.

STORY FROM THE START

Athol Meldrum, young Scotsman, starts out to seek his fortune. He arrives at San Francisco practically broke and meets a fellow adventurer whom he dubs the Prodigal. With Jim Hubbard they join the gold rush to Alaska. On the boat Athol meets Berna, a young woman traveling with her grandfather and a hard looking couple named Winklestein who figure as her aunt and uncle. Landing at Skagway, Athol's party at once takes the trail. In a snowslide on the Chilcoot trail, which Berna and her companions had taken, hundreds of lives are lost. Fearful for Berna's safety, Athol hastens to the scene. He finds the old man dead and learns that Berna is prostrated. At Bennett, Berna comes to Athol, confesses her love, and begs him to marry her, to save her from the harsh fate she foresees. He is unwilling to take such a decisive step, and tells her they must wait. Some days afterward Berna tells Athol Madam Winklestein plans to sell her to "Black Jack" Locasto, millionaire miner of evil reputation. While realizing how greatly he loves the girl Meldrum flinches from the idea of immediate marriage, and they agree to wait a year. Reaching the gold fields, Athol and his party, find the claims all taken and the camp crowded with idle men. Athol's party decides to stay and await developments. Unable to locate Berna, Athol seeks information from Locasto. "Black Jack" disclaims knowledge of her whereabouts, and later, evidently aware of the rivalry between them, lures Meldrum to a lonely spot and beats him into unconsciousness. Through a lucky chance Athol finds Berna.

"And so you found me, dear. I knew you would, somehow. In my heart I knew you would not fail me. So I waited and waited. It was cruel we left so suddenly, not even time to say good-by, but I could not help myself. They dragged me away. They began to be afraid of you, and he bade them leave at once."

"I see, I see." I looked into the pools of her eyes; I sheathed her white hands in my brown ones, thrilling greatly at the contact of them.

"Tell me about it, child. Has he bothered you?"

"Oh, not so much. He thinks he has me safe enough, trapped, awaiting his pleasure. But he's taken up with some woman of the town just now. By-and-by he'll turn his attention to me."

"But, Berna, surely nothing in this world would ever make you yield? Oh, it's horrible!"

She leaned to me tenderly. She put my arms around her neck; she looked at me till I saw my face mirrored in her eyes.

"Believe me and trust me. I would rather throw myself from the bluff here than let him put a hand on me. And so long as I have your love, dear, I'm safe enough. Don't fear. Oh, it's been terrible not seeing you! I've craved for you ceaselessly. I've never been out since we came here. They wouldn't let me. They kept in themselves. He bade them. But now, for some reason, he has relaxed. They're going to open a restaurant down town, and I'm to wait on table."

"No, you're not!" I cried. "Berna, I can't bear to think of you in that garbage-heap of corruption down there. You must marry me—now."

"Now," she echoed, her eyes wide with surprise.

"Yes, right away, dear. There's nothing to prevent us. Berna, I love you, I want you, I need you. I can't bear it, dearest; have pity on me; marry me now. I want you now. I can't wait."

She looked at me gravely. Her voice was very soft, very tender.

"I think it better we should wait, dear. This is a blind, sudden desire on your part. I mustn't take advantage of it. You pity me, fear for me, and you have known so few other girls. I'm not worth it, indeed I'm not. I'm only a poor ignorant girl. If there were others near, you would never think of me."

"Berna," I said, "if you were among a thousand, and they were the most adorable in all the world, I would pass over them all and turn with joy and gratitude to you."

"Ah, no," she said sadly, "you were wise once. I saw it afterwards. Better wait one year."

She went on very quietly, full of gentle patience.

"You know, I've been thinking a great deal since then. In the long, long days and longer nights, when I waited here in misery, hoping always you would come to me, I had time to reflect, to weigh your words. This is June. Next June, if you have not made up your mind you were foolish, blind, hasty, I will give myself to you with all the love in the world."

"Perhaps you will change."

She smiled a peculiar little smile.

"Never, never fear that. I will be waiting for you, longing for you, loving you more and more every day. Let us wait, boy, just a year."

I saw the pathetic wisdom of her words.

"I know you fear something will happen to me. No! I think I will be quite safe. I can withstand him. And if it should come to the worst I can call on you. You mustn't go too far away. I will die rather than let him lay a hand on me. Till next June, dear, not a day longer. We will both be the better for the wait."

I bowed my head. "Very well," I said huskily; "and what will I do in the meantime?"

"Do! Do what you would have done otherwise. Work! It will be better for you to go away. It will make it easier for me. Here we will both torture each other. I, too, will work and live quietly, and long for you. You will come and see me sometimes?"

"Yes," I answered. My voice choked with emotion.

"Now we must go home," she said; "I'm afraid they will be back."

She rose, and I followed her down the narrow trail.

We reached the cabin, and on the threshold she paused. The others had not yet returned. She held out both hands to me, and her eyes were glittering with tears.

"Be brave, my dearest; it's all for my sake—if you love me."

"I love you, my darling; anything for your sake. I'll go tomorrow."

"We're betrothed now, aren't we, dearest?"

"We're betrothed, my love."

She swayed to me and seemed to fit into my arms as a sword fits into its sheath. My lips lay on hers, and I kissed her with a passionate joy.

"I love you, I love you," she murmured; "next June, my darling, next June."

Then she gently slipped away from me, and I was gazing blankly at the closed door.

"Next June," I heard a voice echo; and there, looking at me with a smile, was Locasto.

Hate was far from my heart, and when I saw the man himself was regarding me with no particular unfriendliness, I was disposed to put aside for the moment all feelings of enmity. The generosity of the victor glowed within me.

As he advanced to me his manner was almost urbane in its geniality.

"You must forgive me," he said, not without dignity, "for overhearing you; but by chance I was passing and dropped upon you before I realized it."

He extended his hand frankly.

"I trust my congratulations on your good luck will not be entirely obnoxious. I know that my conduct in this affair cannot have impressed you in a very favorable light; but I am a badly beaten man. Can't you be generous and let bygones be bygones? Won't you?"

I had not yet come down to earth. I was still soaring in the rarefied heights of love, and inclined to a general amnesty towards my enemies.

As he stood there, quiet and compelling, there was an assumption of frankness and honesty about this man that it was hard to withstand. For the nonce I was persuaded of his sincerity, and weakly I surrendered my hand. His grip made me wince.

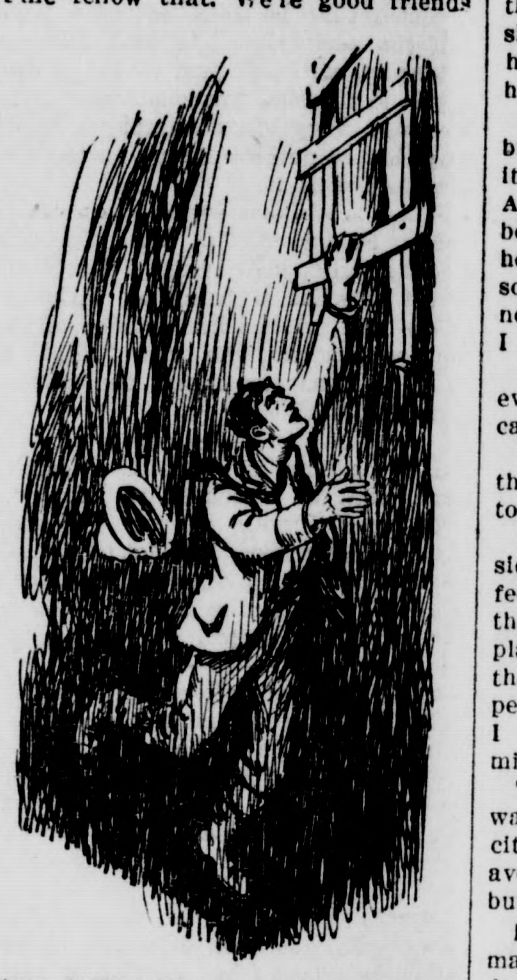
"Yes, again I congratulate you. I know and admire her. They don't make them any better. She's pure gold. You mustn't mind me taking an interest in your sweetheart. I'm old enough to be her father, you know and she touches me strangely. Now don't distrust me. I want to be a friend to you both. I want to help you to be happy. Jack Locasto's not such a bad lot, as you'll find when you know him. Is there anything I can do for you? What are you going to do in this country?"

"I don't quite know yet," I said "I hope to stake a good claim when the chance comes. Meantime I'm going to get work on the creeks."

"Well, I'll tell you what: I've got laymen working on my Eldorado claim; I'll give you a note to them if you like."

I thanked him.

"Oh, that's all right," he said. "I'm sorry I played such a mean part in the past, and I'll do anything in my power to straighten things out. Believe me, I mean it. Your English friend gave me the worst drubbing of my life, but three days after I went round and shook hands with him. Fine fellow that. We're good friends now. I always own up when I'm beaten, and I never bear ill-will. If I can help you in any way, and hasten your marriage to that little girl there, well you can just bank on Jack Locasto: that's all."



There I Was Hanging Desperately on the Lowest Rung of the Ladder.

I must say the man could be most conciliating when he chose. As he talked to me, my fears were dissipated, my suspicions lulled. And when we parted we shook hands cordially

"Don't forget," he said; "if you want help bank on me. I mean it now, I mean it."

• • • • • • •

'Twas early in the bright and cool of the morning when we started for Eldorado, Jim and I. I had a letter from Locasto to Ribwood and Hoofman, the laymen, and I showed it to Jim. He frowned.

"You don't mean to say you've palled up with that devil," he said

"Oh, he's not so bad," I expostulated. "He came to me like a man and offered me his hand in friendship. I've no reason to doubt his sincerity."

"Sincerity be danged. He's about as sincere as a tame rattlesnake. Put his letter in the creek."

But no! I refused to listen to the old man.

'Well, go your own gait," he said; "but don't say that I didn't warn you."

Following the trail, we struck up Bonanza, a small muddy stream in a narrow valley. About noon we descended into the creek bed and came to the Forks. It was a little town a Dawson in miniature, with all its sordid aspects infinitely accentuated.

There in the din and daze and dirt we tarried awhile; then, after eating heartily, we struck up Eldorado.

At the Forks I inquired regarding Ribwood and Hoofman: "Goin' to work for them, are you? Well, they've got a blamed hard name. If you get a job elsewhere, don't turn it down."

Ribwood was a tall, gaunt Cornishman, with a narrow, jutting face and a gloomy air; Hoofman, a burly, beet-colored Australian with a bulging stomach.

"Yes, we'll put you to work," said Hoofman, reading the letter. "Get your coat off and shovel in."

So, right away, I found myself in the dump-pile, jamming a shovel into the pay-dirt and swinging it into a sluice-box five feet higher than my head. Keeping at this hour after hour was no fun.

For three days I made the dirt fly; but toward quitting time, I must say, its flight was a very uncertain one. Again I suffered all the tortures of becoming toil-broken. The constant hoisting into the overhead sluice-box somehow worked muscles that had never gone into action before, and I ached elaborately.

I was glad, indeed, when, on the evening of the third, day, Ribwood came to me and said:

"I guess you'd better work up at the shaft tomorrow. We want a man to wheel muck."

They had a shaft sunk on the hillside. They were down some forty feet and were drifting in, wheeling the pay-dirt down a series of planks placed on trestles to the dump. After the first day I became quite an expert at the business. My spirits rose. I was on the way of becoming a miner.

Turning the windlass over the shaft was a little, tough mud-rat, who excited in me the liveliest sense of aversion. Pat Doogan was his name, but I will call him the "Worm."

He was the most degraded type of man I had yet met on my travels, a degenerate, dirty, drunken, diseased.

One day Hoofman told me he wanted me to go down the shaft and work in the drift. Accordingly, next morning I and a huge Slav, by name Dooley Rileyvich, were lowered down into the darkness.

The shaft was almost forty feet deep. For the first ten feet a ladder ran down it, then stopped suddenly as if the excavators had decided to abandon it. I often looked at this useless bit of ladder and wondered why it had been left unfinished.

Every morning the Worm hoisted us down into the darkness, and at night drew us up. Once he said to me:

"Say, wouldn't it be de tough luck if I was to take a fit when I was hoistin' youse up? Such a nice bit of a boy, too, an' I guess I'd lose my job over de head of it."

I said: "Cut that out, or you'll have me so scared I won't go down."

He grinned unpleasantly and said nothing more. Yet somehow he was geting on my nerves terribly.

One evening we were ready to be hoisted up. Dooley Rileyvich went first, and I watched him blot out the bit of blue for a while. Then, slowly, down came the bucket for me.

I got in. I was feeling uneasy all of a sudden, and devoutly wished I were anywhere else but in that hideous hole. I felt myself leave the ground and rise steadily. I was now ten feet from the top. The bucket was rocking a little, so I put out my hand and grasped the lowest rung of the ladder to steady myself.

Then, at that instant, it seemed the weight of the bucket pressing up against my feet was suddenly removed, and my arm was nigh jerked out of its socket. There I was hanging desperately on the lowest rung of the ladder, while, with a crash that made my heart sick, the bucket dashed to the bottom. A last, I realized, the Worm had had his fit.

Quickly I gripped with both hands. With a great effort I raised myself rung by rung on the ladder. Dizzily I hung all a-shudder, half-sobbing. A minute seemed like a year.

Ah! there was the face of Dooley looking down on me. He saw me clinging there. He was anxiously shouting to me to come up. Mastering an overpowering nausea I raised myself. At last I felt his strong arm around me, and I was on firm ground once more. The Worm was lying stiff and rigid. Without a word the stalwart Slav took him on his brawny shoulder. The creek was down-hill but fifty yards. Ere we reached it the Worm had begun to show signs of reviving consciousness.

"Leave me alone," he says to Rileyvich; "you Slavonian swine, lemme go."

Not so the Slav. Holding the wriggling, writhing little man in his powerful arms he plunged him heels over head in the muddy current of the creek.

"I guess I cure dose fits anyway," he said grimly.

Struggling, spluttering, blaspheming, the little man freed himself at last and staggered ashore. He cursed Rileyvich most comprehensively.

Old Churches Put to Variety of Purposes

The oldest English social institution is the parish vestry. It is a descendant of the tribal council of most primitive human establishment, combined with the nearly as old institution of religion. This body of persons intrusted with the administration of the temporal affairs of a parish was so called from the former custom of holding parish meetings in the vestry of the church. In ancient England vestries regulated all parochial affairs, ecclesiastical or civil. Indeed, the parish church of the Fourteenth century was the common hall, sometimes the common market place and theater of its district. When the Host and portable altar were removed the church would be employed for all purposes. A landowner who found he had more wool or grain than he could take care of on his own premises could store it in the church simply by paying a small fee to the parson. Even the tower of the church was used. Especially in the more exposed districts near the sea, it was a place of refuge, the castle of the inhabitants.—Detroit News.

Watermarks in Paper

Watermarks in paper have been used for a long time to lend distinction to the product of a particular paper maker and for other purposes. One of the oldest, a circle surmounted by a tall cross, is found in documents dating back to the Fourteenth century. Other old marks are the fleur-de-lys, the court jester, the huntsman's horn, the hand pointing to a five-pointed star and the tankard, well known in papers of the Sixteenth and Seventeenth centuries.

Her Place in the Sun

She lay lifeless, a mere shattered torso. Her beautiful vacant eyes stared calmly at you; even yet the flawless waves stuck to her golden hair. Her facial beauty was ruined; her lovely cheeks had slid down into her neck, and there they were in chunks. But still the light was in her eyes; she'd met her destruction bravely, and never squinted once . . .

"We'll need a new dummy," said the hairdresser, looking at the show window the storm had blown in.

Boer Treasure Divided When Struggle Ended

Kruger's millions are still the subject of much discussion. The latest story is that told by Mr. Horak, who was a commandant in the Boer forces. His story is that: "When the war was nearing its end, General Botha issued a notice ordering all British subjects who had fought for the Boers to proceed to Komatipoort and informed them that they would be given a passage to any country they wished. This was done in order that they would not be tried as traitors. Men to the number of about 2,500 gathered at Komatipoort and then Botha ordered that all bullion and gold in the possession of the state should be taken to Komatipoort and divided among the men as a reward for their services. The bars of gold were cut up and the men were given equal shares. Later the men sailed from Lourenzo Marques."

"It's no wonder his head is swelled," said the mayor. "Look how wise and successful he is. All great men have swelled heads. Look at Alexander.

" 'These peace offers, sire, are superb,' Parmenio said. 'I would accept them if I were Alexander.'

Silent

Gypsy Smith, the evangelist, never used a knife nor a fork until he was seventeen years old and, according to his own story, spent his youth peddling clothes pegs and singing in barrooms to the accompaniment of his father's fiddle.

Gypsy preached his first sermon to his father's turnip field and later in life frequently referred to the turnips as the most attentive audience he ever had.

FIRES LAID TO PLANE SMOKING

A new and startling menace to the fields and forests of California is seen by the United States Forest Service officials in the throwing of burning tobacco from airplanes.

Information that a number of large grain and grass fires in the interior valleys of the state have been started by lighted cigarettes and cigars thrown from airplanes has been received by the State Division of Forestry.

Tests made recently at the Spokane, Washington, airport by United States Forest Service officials, from altitudes of 500 to 1,000 feet showed that lighted cigarettes and cigars were still burning when picked up on the ground.

All air mail, commercial and passenger-carrying aviation companies will be requested to adopt strict measures to prevent the throwing of burning tobacco from planes, Forest Service officials announced.

BEAR FLAG, MADE OF PRODUCTS, TO BE FAIR FEATURE

Typical of the historic theme which will prevail in exhibits at California's Diamond Jubilee State Fair in Sacramento, August 31 to September 9, is the display being prepared by Sonoma county.

It was in this county that formal declaration of Californa's independence from the government of Mexico was made, and the Bear Flag was hoisted in the plaza of the town of Sonoma.

This great moment in the state's history is to be portrayed at the fair in a beautiful exhibit. The big picture 12 by 30 feet, will be wrought with dried fruits, prunes, pears, apples, peaches, apricots, raisins, and other products with their different colors and shadings. An artist experienced in construction of exhibits has been engaged and is now at work on the designing.

Other parts of the exhibit will show the great variety of agricultural resources of the county which ranks eighth in the United States in the production of agricultural wealth.

The Sonoma county exhibit is in charge of a joint committee of the Grange, the Farm Bureau and the associated Chambers of Commerce of the county. Mrs. Belle Leroux, of Guerneyville, prominent in California because of her Grange and club work, is chairman. The board of supervisors has made liberal financial provisions for the exhibit.

Removal of the present limit of $15,000 a mile on Federal contributions to state highways in the Federal Aid system is being sought by the Western Association of State Highway officials.
